GOING GREEN

Researching this guidebook we discovered many hotels, cafes, pubs, restaurants and attractions demonstrating a commitment to sustainability, and we take great pleasure in highlighting some of them here. We've selected places to eat that support local producers or champion 'slow food' – as well as farmers markets and some local producers themselves. We've listed accommodation deemed to be environmentally friendly, demonstrating for example a commitment to recycling or energy conservation (and they've got to be a great place to stay, too). The range of 'green' attractions is especially broad – including places involved in conservation and environmental education, or winners of ecological awards. If you want to do your bit, see Travelling Responsibly (p22) for a few ideas on sustainable and responsible travel in Great Britain, or check www.lonelyplanet.com/responsibletravel for the bigger picture. And if you want to add to the list, or if you disagree with our choices, email talk2us@lonelyplanet.com.au and set us straight for next time.
